

A Day in the Life at Fitchburg State College

9 —Senior and resident of the Townhouses Dan Demus opts for "Hogan's Heroes" over late night TV king Johnny Carson to put him in a zzzzful mood.

12

3 All the time—A common sight around the FSC community, as Fitchburg police patrolman Otis Mangrum tickets an illegally parked car.

6 —Michelle Miner zooms in on her studies at the Campus Center.

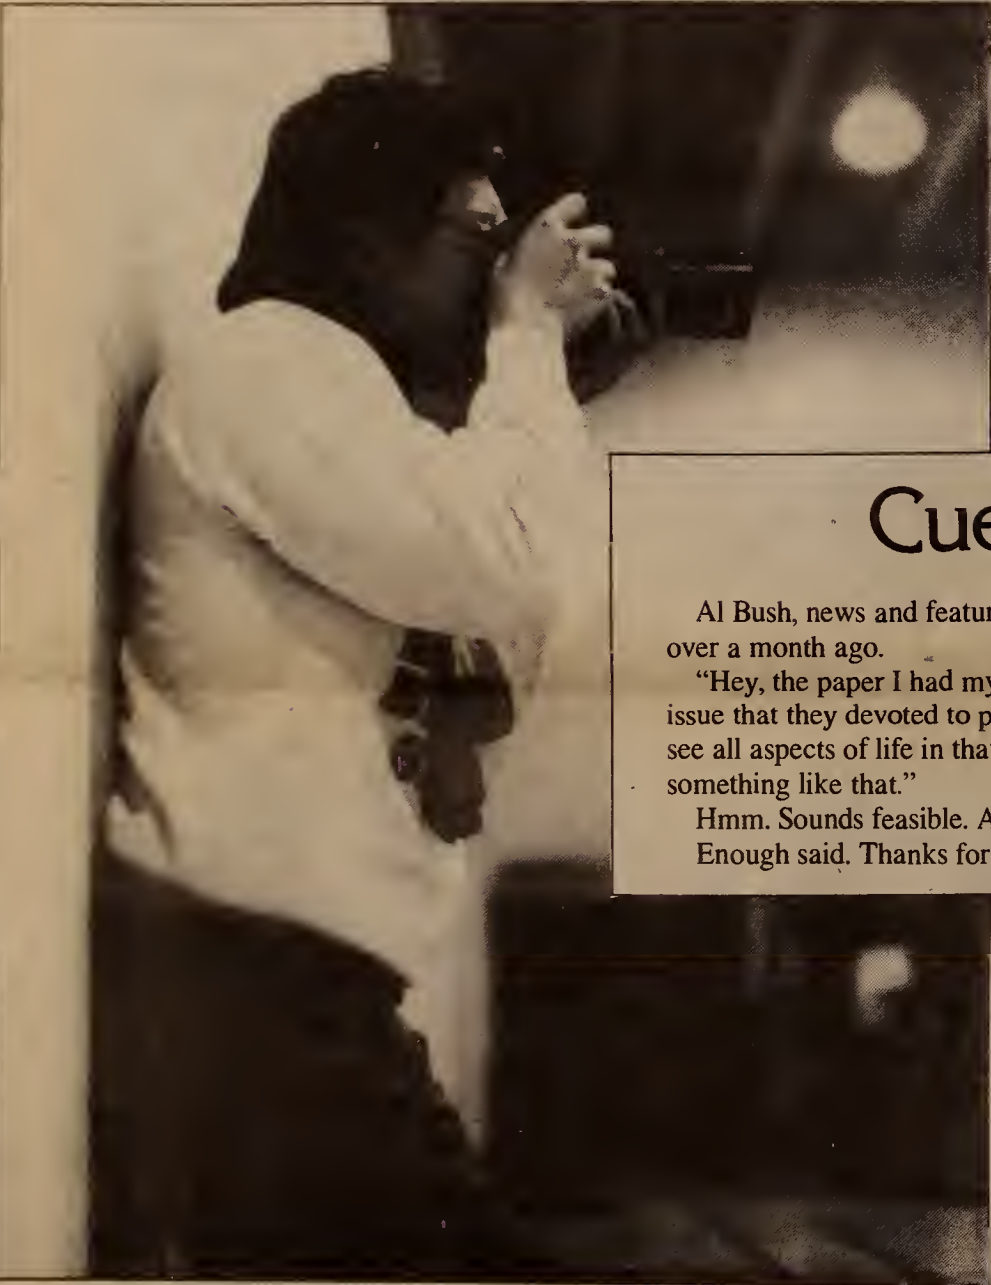

—Mohammed Hossain prepares a pair of over-easy eggs at DAKA.

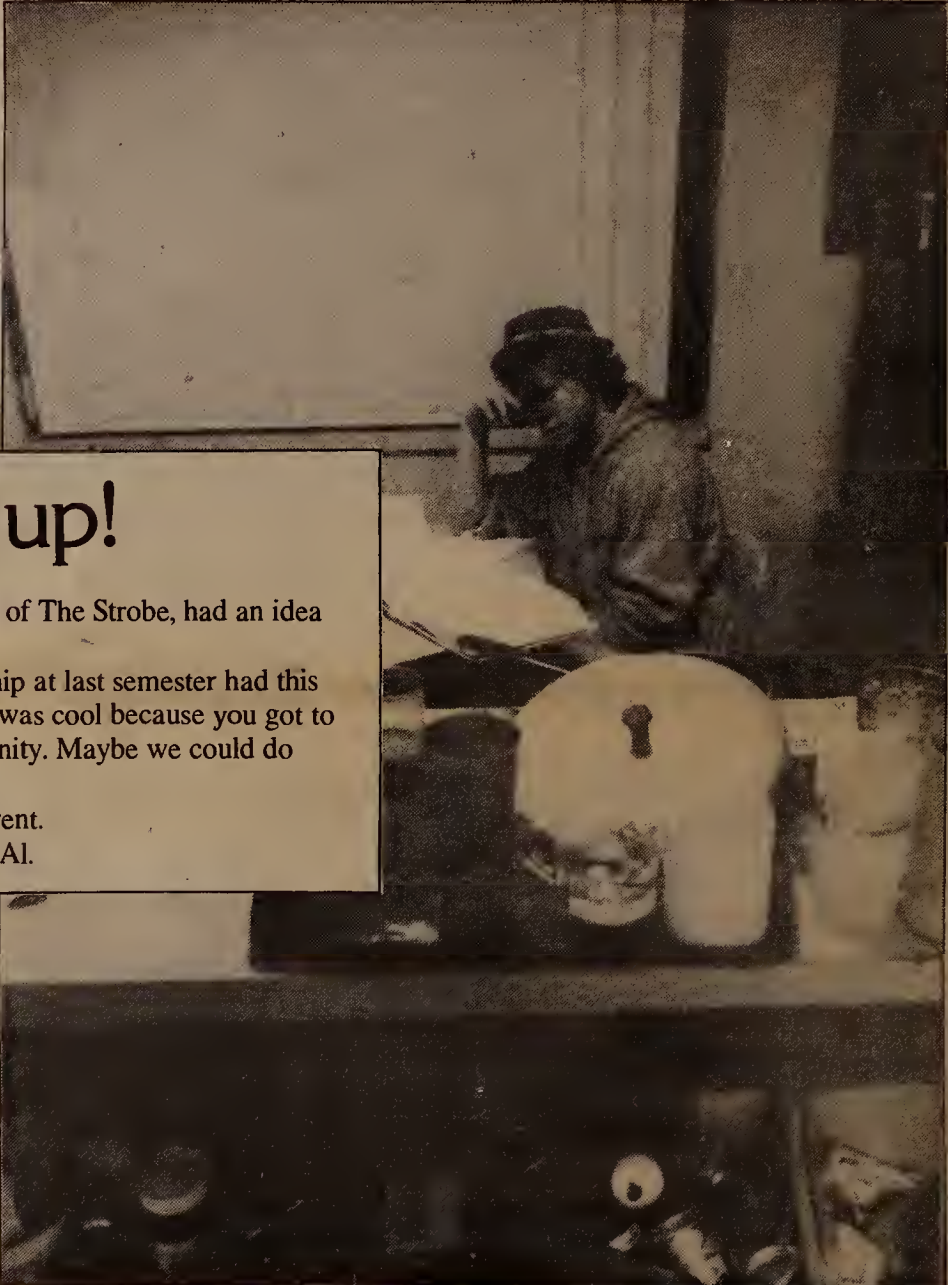

12:15 p.m.—Steve Priestley and Kerry McLaughlin are all smiles outside Holmes Dining Commons.

12:35 a.m.—Happy Birthday to you! Julie Hetherington purses her lips and blows out the candles on her 21st.

8:02 p.m.—Yearbook photographer Chang Kim is caught in his own act.

10:00 p.m.—Although the dishes are piling up, Don Savery keeps his priorities straight and studies into the night.

Cue it up!

Al Bush, news and features editor of The Strobe, had an idea over a month ago.

“Hey, the paper I had my internship at last semester had this issue that they devoted to photos. It was cool because you got to see all aspects of life in that community. Maybe we could do something like that.”

Hmm. Sounds feasible. And different.

Enough said. Thanks for the cue, Al.

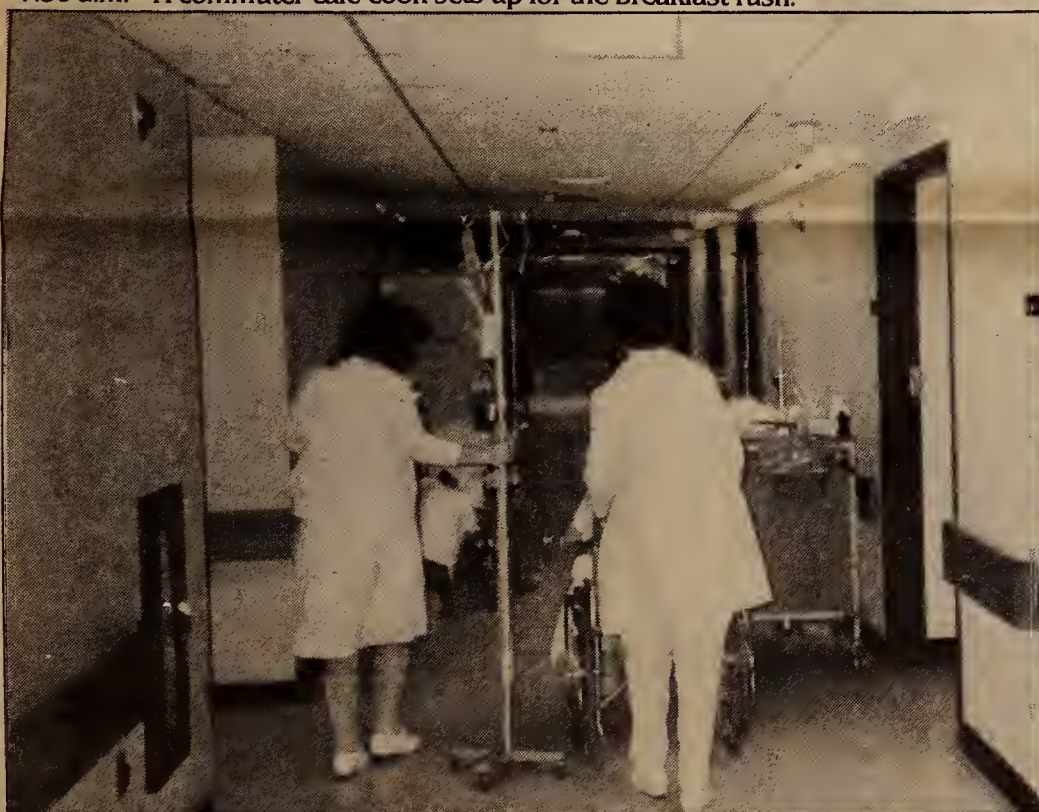

Times too numerous to mention—A daily necessity/luxury for a couple members of the male population.

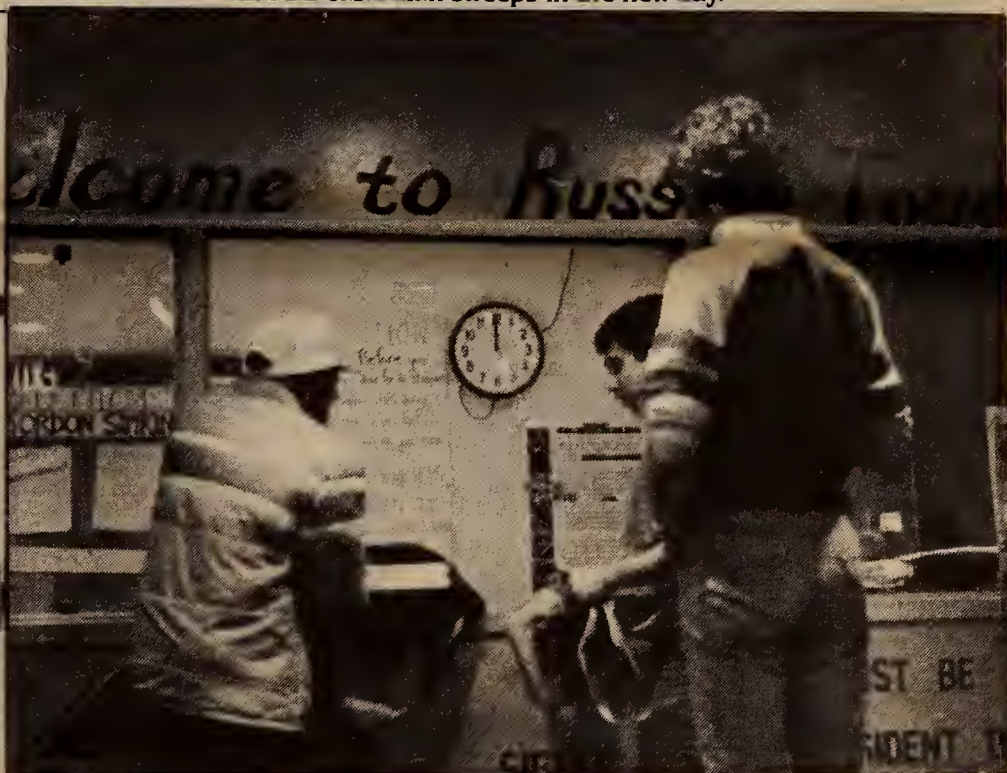

7:30 a.m.—A commuter cafe cook sets up for the breakfast rush.

12:01 a.m.—An FSC custodian sweeps in the new day.

12:13 a.m.—An FSC student, left, assists in wheeling a patient at Burbank Hospital.

MIDNIGHT—Bill McCarty, partially obstructed, ends the day with a Domino's pizza delivered by Karl Whitley.

5:30-9:00 p.m.—FSC faculty engage in a "marathon" meeting of the minds.

11:59 p.m.—Fabian Williams, a Campus Center poolie who works a variety of Campus Center jobs, cleans up after another rollicking night at the Campus Pub.

5:30 p.m.—Dan Kenny is determined to achieve the decline press at World Gym in Fitchburg.

9:20 p.m.—Jerry Galvin shoots the four ball in the corner pocket at the Games Room.

8:30 p.m.—A Falcon charges to the hoop against Bridgewater State College.

8:00 p.m.—Going up for the shot. Unfortunately, the women's hoop team lost.

8:30 p.m.—A Falcon charges to the hoop against Bridgewater State College.

7:20 p.m.—Tapping into the instant teller machine before a Thursday night brouhaha.

1:45 p.m.—Custodian Tony Perenzin sweeps up as student Gary Goller, on couch, snoozes.

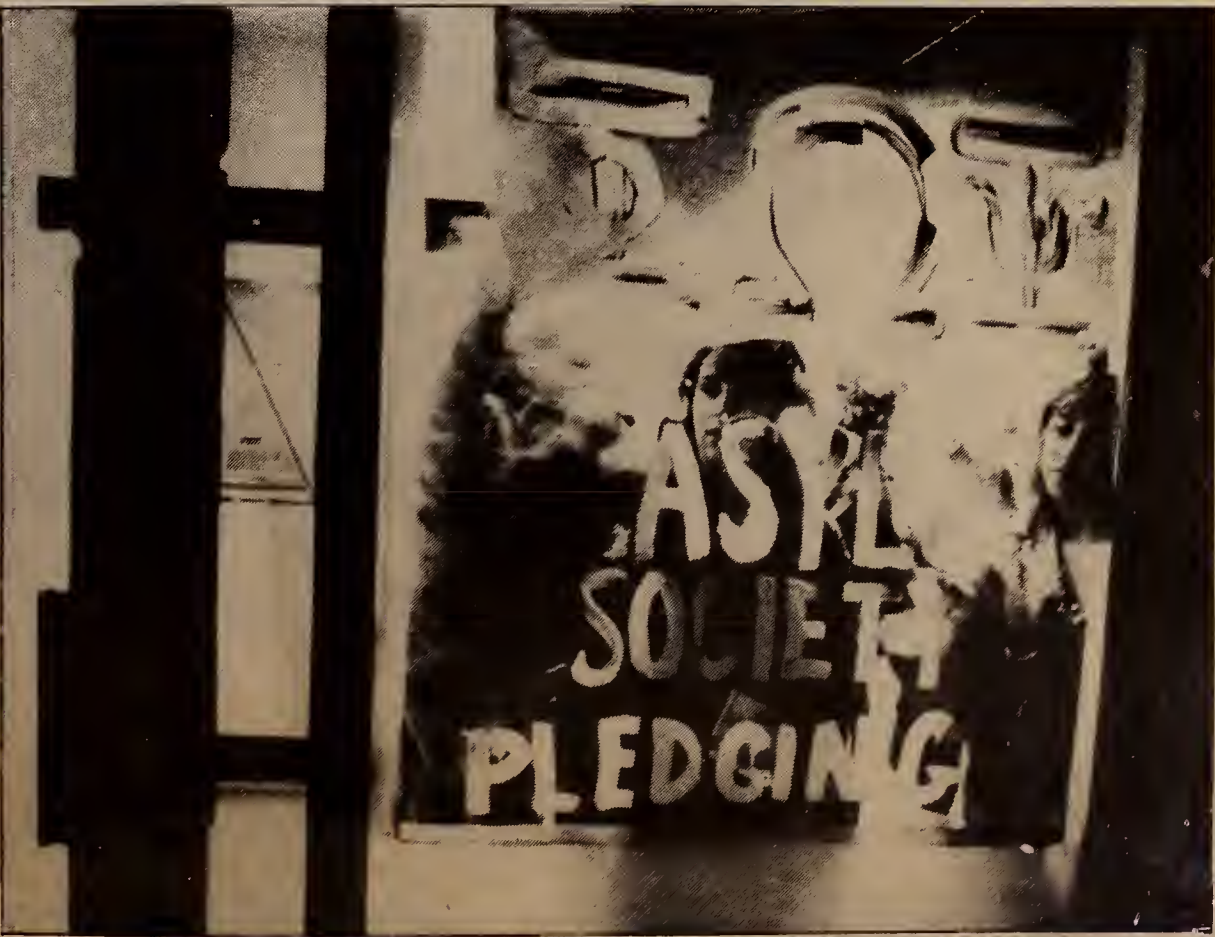

3:48 p.m.—Maggie, the SUPERCHICK cashier, handles a purchase made by student Kirsten Davis.

10:15 p.m.—Student escorts head toward the Hammond Building.

10:15 p.m.—WXPL DJ Jim Hampton plays "soft sounds for soft minds" music during his progressive industrial jam.

11:11 p.m.—Neasylon pledges diligently clean windows in the Hammond Building.

7:20 a.m.—Before dropping herself off at FSC, non-traditional graphics major Norma Quinn stops her bus and drops her three sons off at school.

10:09 p.m.—Ann McAuliffe has the study table all to herself.

8:40 p.m.—A student is swamped with books.

12:09 a.m.—If the photographer's flash wasn't enough to wake this sleeping beauty then it would stand to reason that it would take more than a kiss from a handsome prince to do the job.

12:00 p.m.—When the lunch whistle blows DAKA overflows with students and hungry bodies.

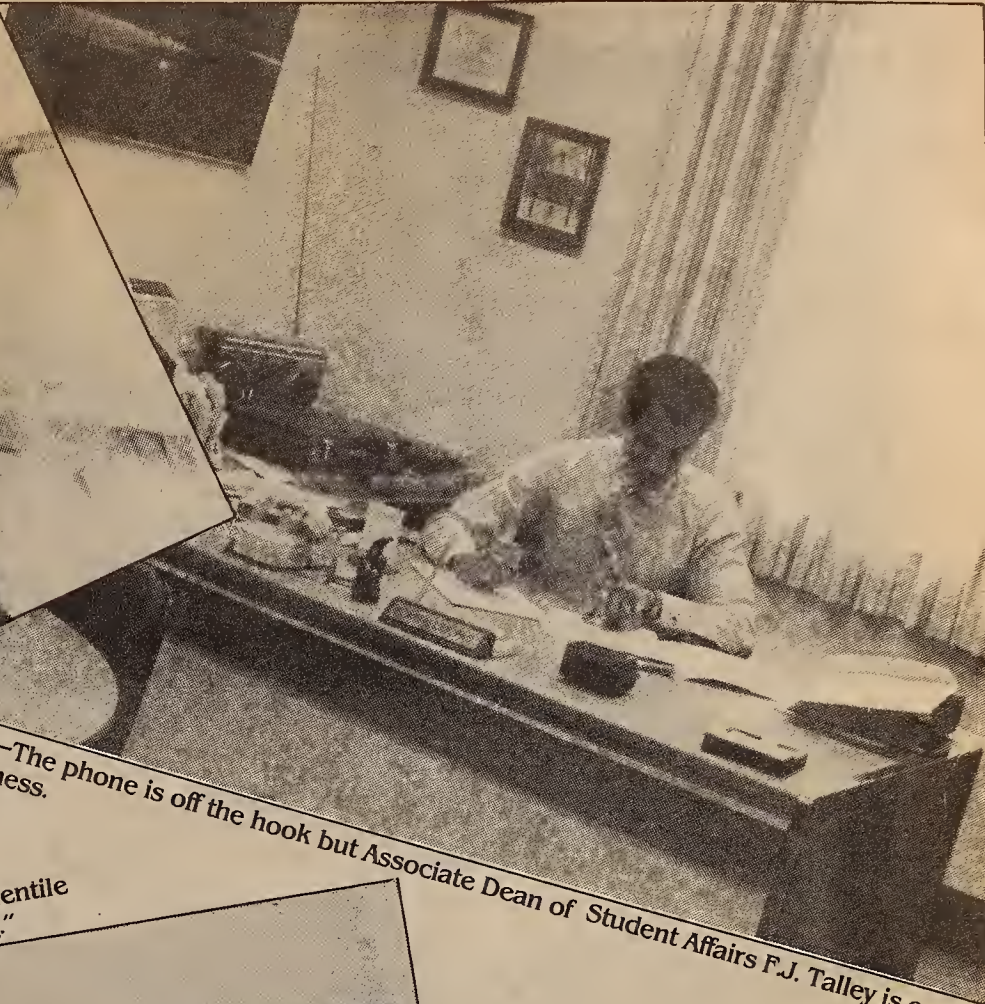

12:25 a.m.—Twenty-five minutes into his overnight shift, campus officer in charge Lt. Dan Schmitt does some paper work and makes sure there isn't a warrant out for his own arrest.

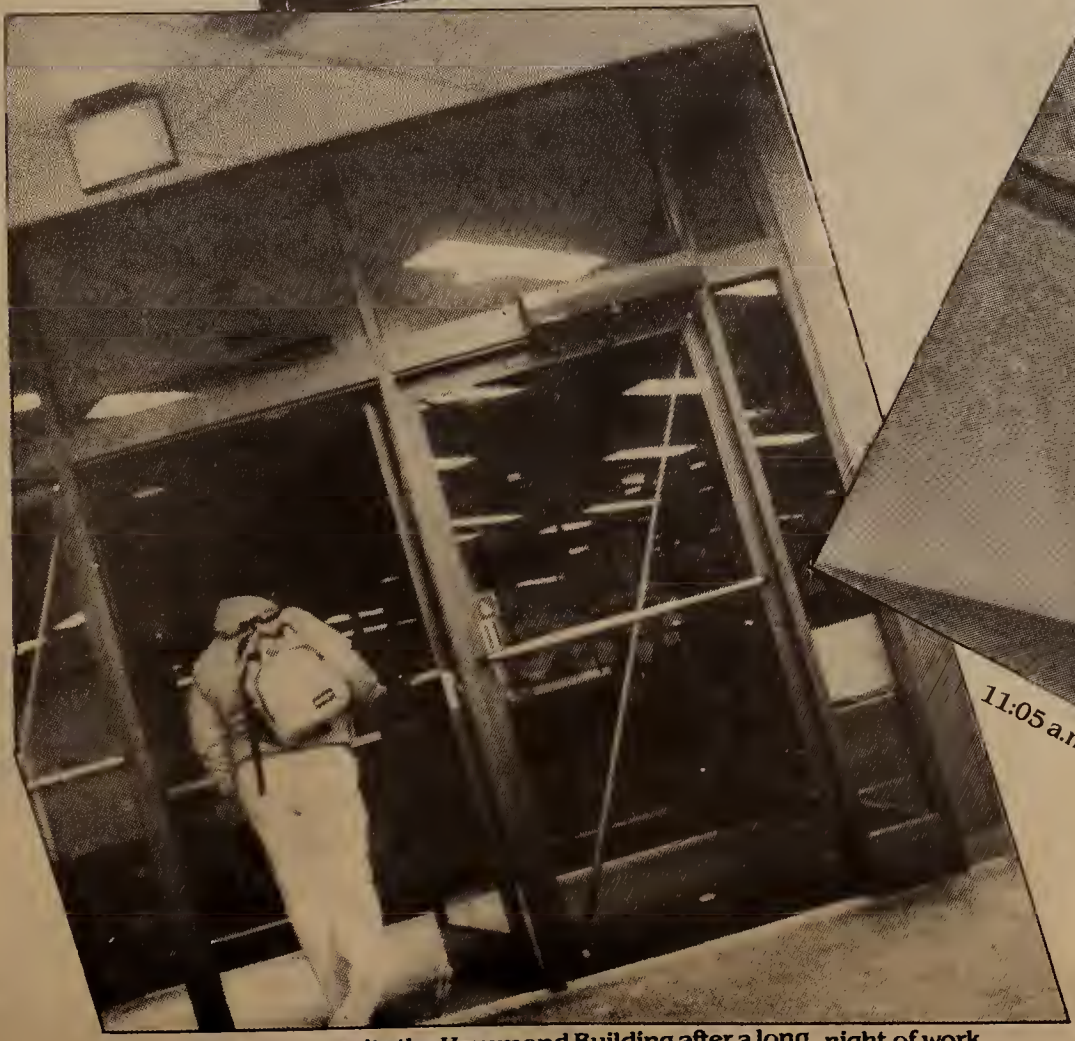

3:29 p.m.—Lauren Weber sifts through cards at the bookstore.

11:14 a.m.—The phone is off the hook but Associate Dean of Student Affairs F.J. Talley is on top of FSC business.

12:28 a.m.—Gerry Dumais, left, and Mark Gentile partake in a friendly game of "beer pong."

12:10 a.m.—Ben Hampton exits the Hammond Building after a long night of work.

11:05 a.m.—Something has got this student scratching. Sure hope it's his homework.

9:30 a.m.—Janny Kowynra takes senior portraits for the yearbook whose theme happens to be "A Year In The Life."

12:22 a.m.—Department of Public Safety officer Michael Jackson is in full attire.

11:59 p.m.—March 25 may be coming to a close but remnants remain and this custodial worker does her best to give the next day a fresh start.

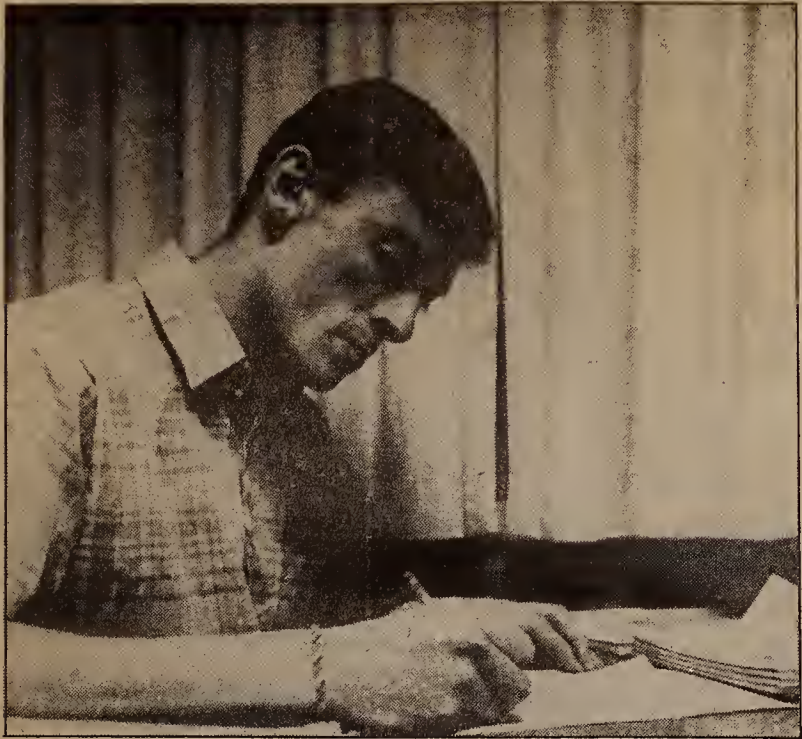

10:20 p.m.—Townhouse residents tend to their laundry.

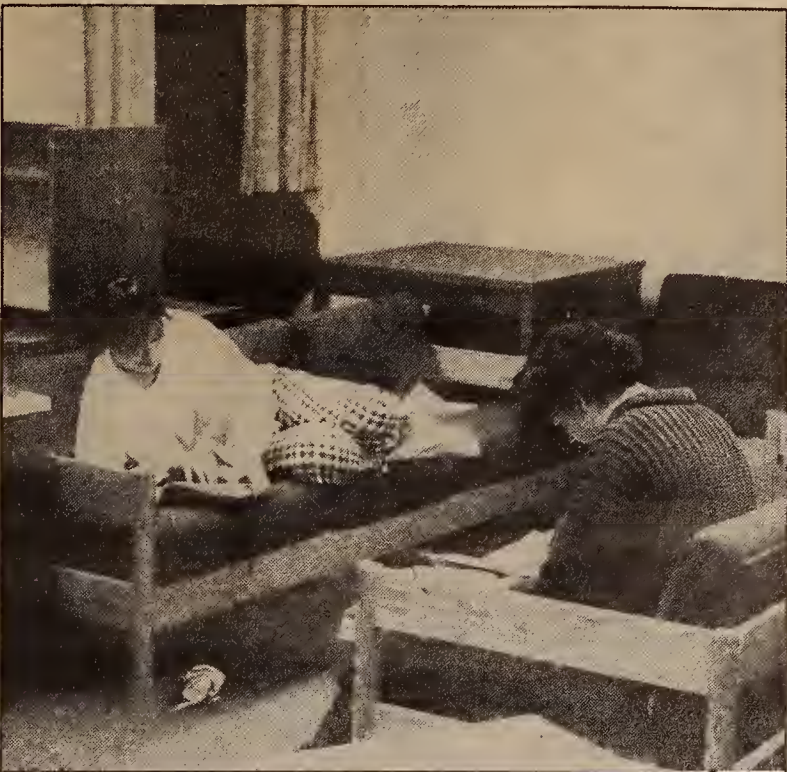

2:27 p.m.—An FSC foursome is desperately trying to ignore the Strobe photometer.

11:40 a.m.—Students in Graphics III class critique projects.

9:11 p.m.—Brian Crossman gets down to some work at the townhouse front desk.

1:07 a.m.—Kathy Barry, left, and Linda Ryan in Russell Tower's study lounge cramming for an exam only a few hours away.

1:30 p.m.—Joanne Farrell performs a common task at FSC.

3:24 p.m.—The Anthony Building continues to undergo its facelift.

8:44 a.m.—Campus Center worker Rob Willard cleans the Q-tables before the lobby rush sets in.

9:30 p.m.—Campus Pizza proprietor Mike Haldousis exchanges some bills to awaiting hands.

2:45 p.m.—Dr. Irene Harris displays an issue of The Strobe to her journalism class.

1:41 a.m.—Andy Dunn is nestled comfortably in his townhouse.

7:15 p.m.—Strobe members Andy Baron, left, and Al Bush look over some issue photographs.

11:55 p.m.—One of the many students who check their mailboxes daily to find that the check wasn't in the mail.

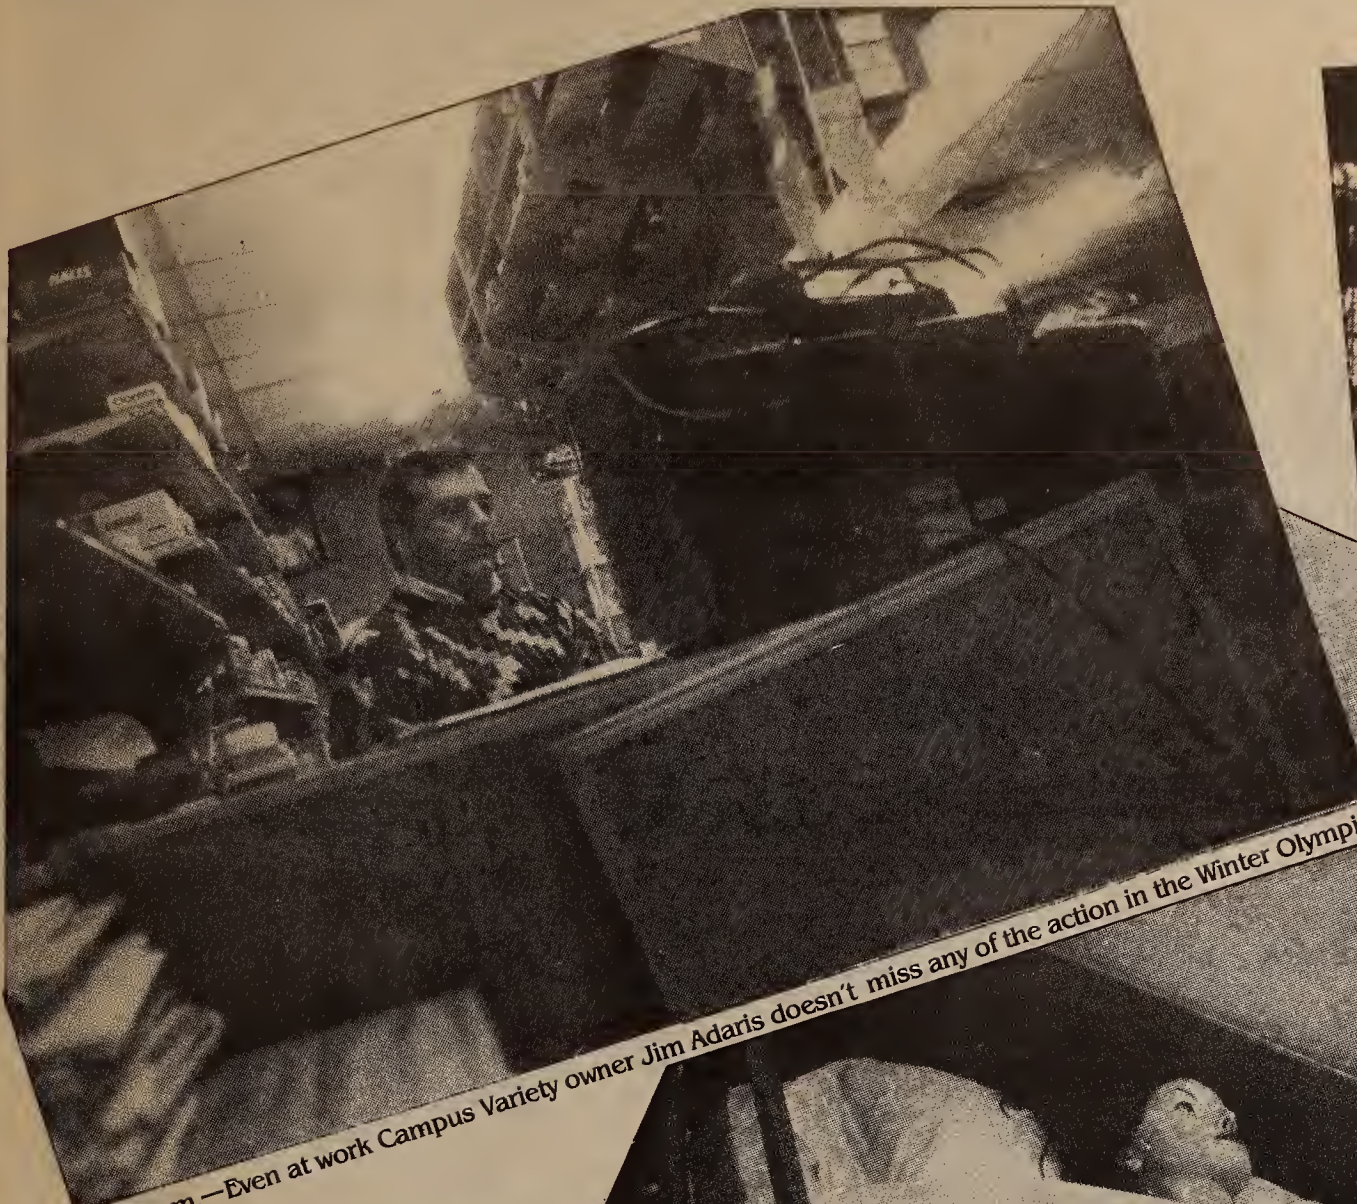

3:45 p.m.—Armand Frigon, world renowned DAKA chef, prepares a dish known to his followers as Stir-Fry Of-The-Week.

11:45 a.m.—Tim Munn, left, and John Burke have a couple of brews over some Thursday night TV viewing.

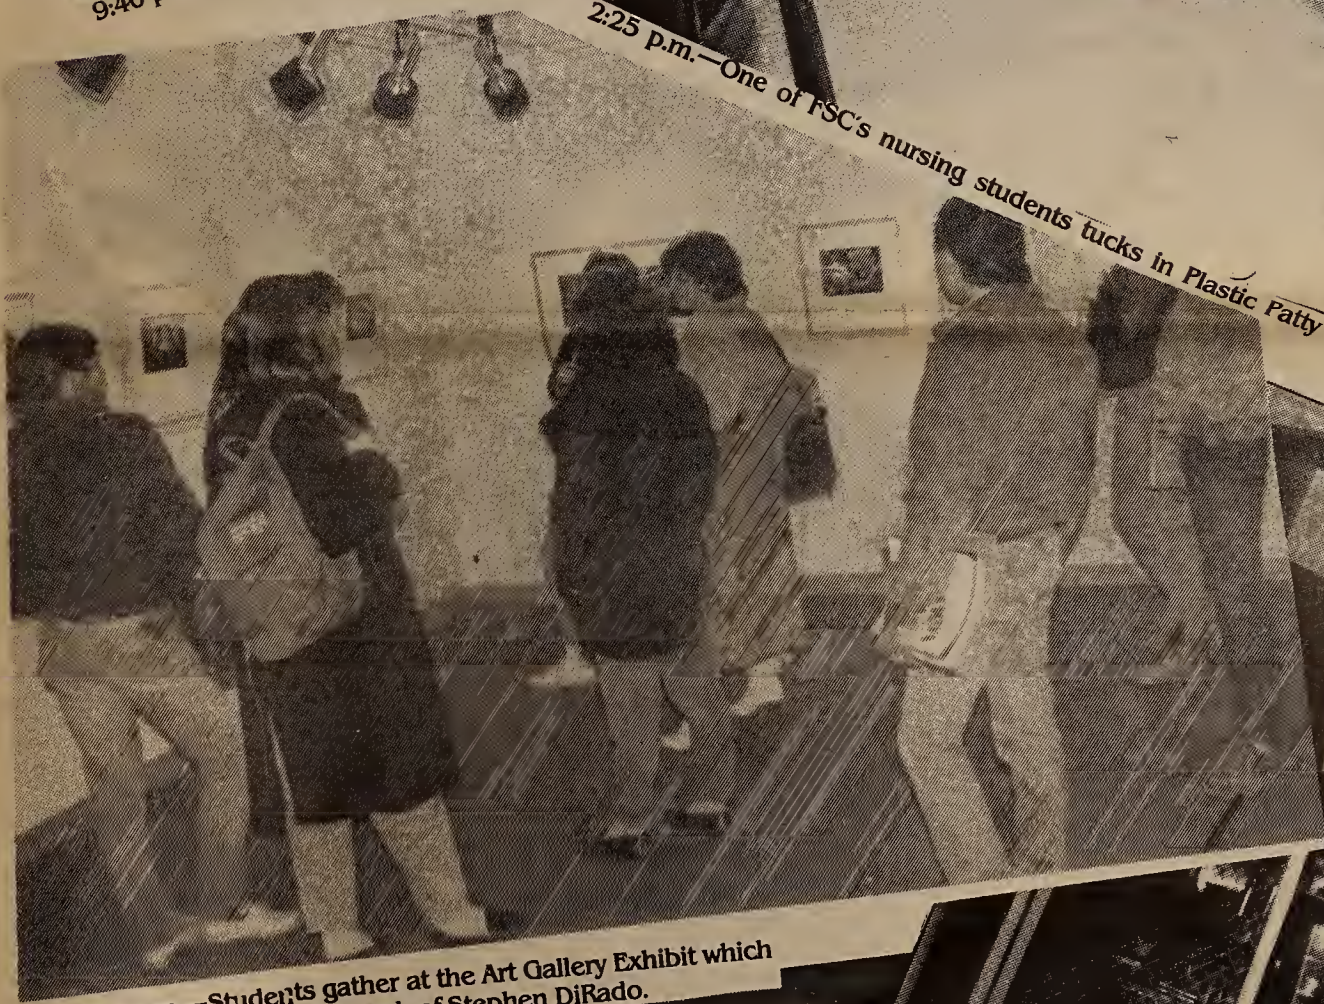

4:50 p.m.—A dorm room can easily be converted into a swinging bachelor pad. All that is needed are a few posters, some cool tapes and...well the homework we could do without.

9:40 p.m.—Even at work Campus Variety owner Jim Adaris doesn't miss any of the action in the Winter Olympics.

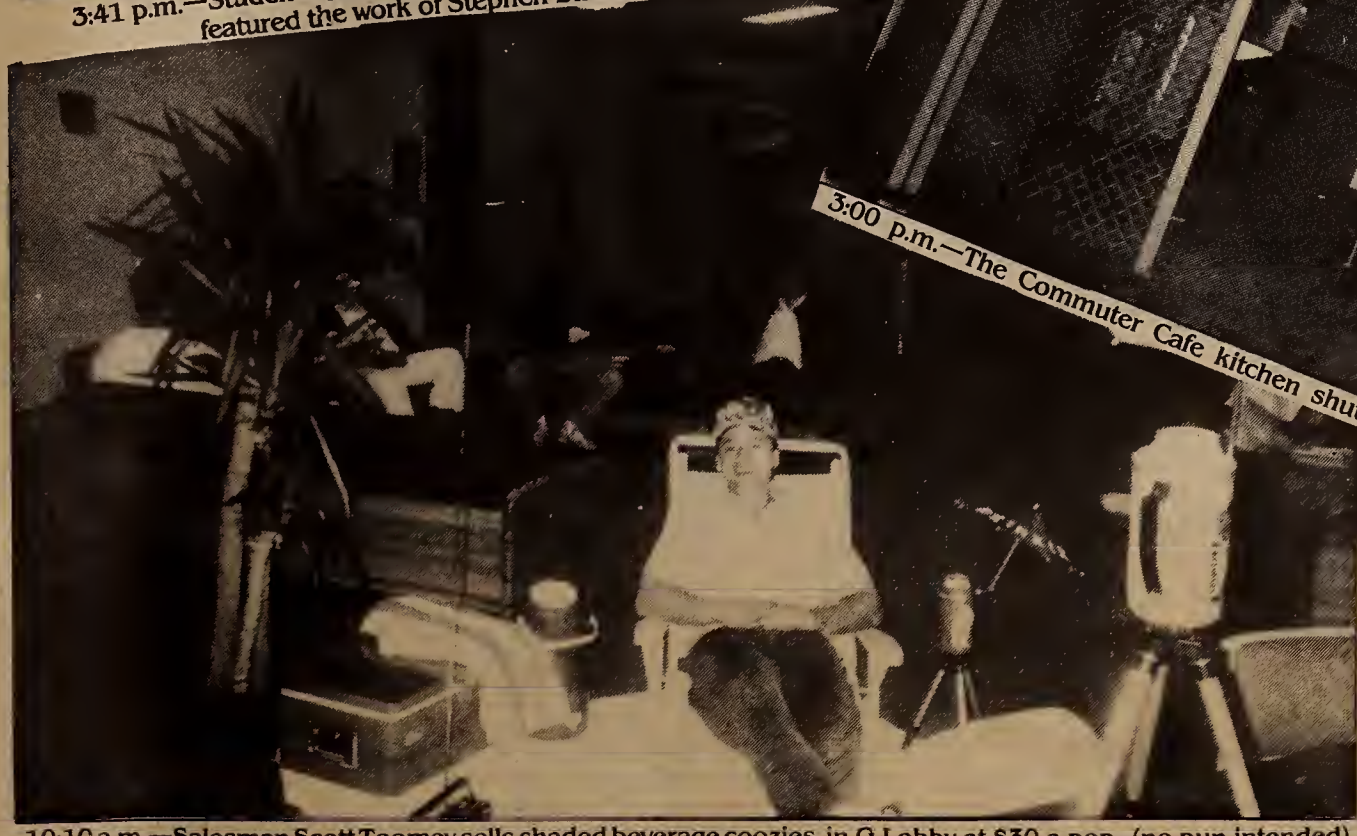

12:30 a.m.—The Campus Center looks like a longshot from this angle.

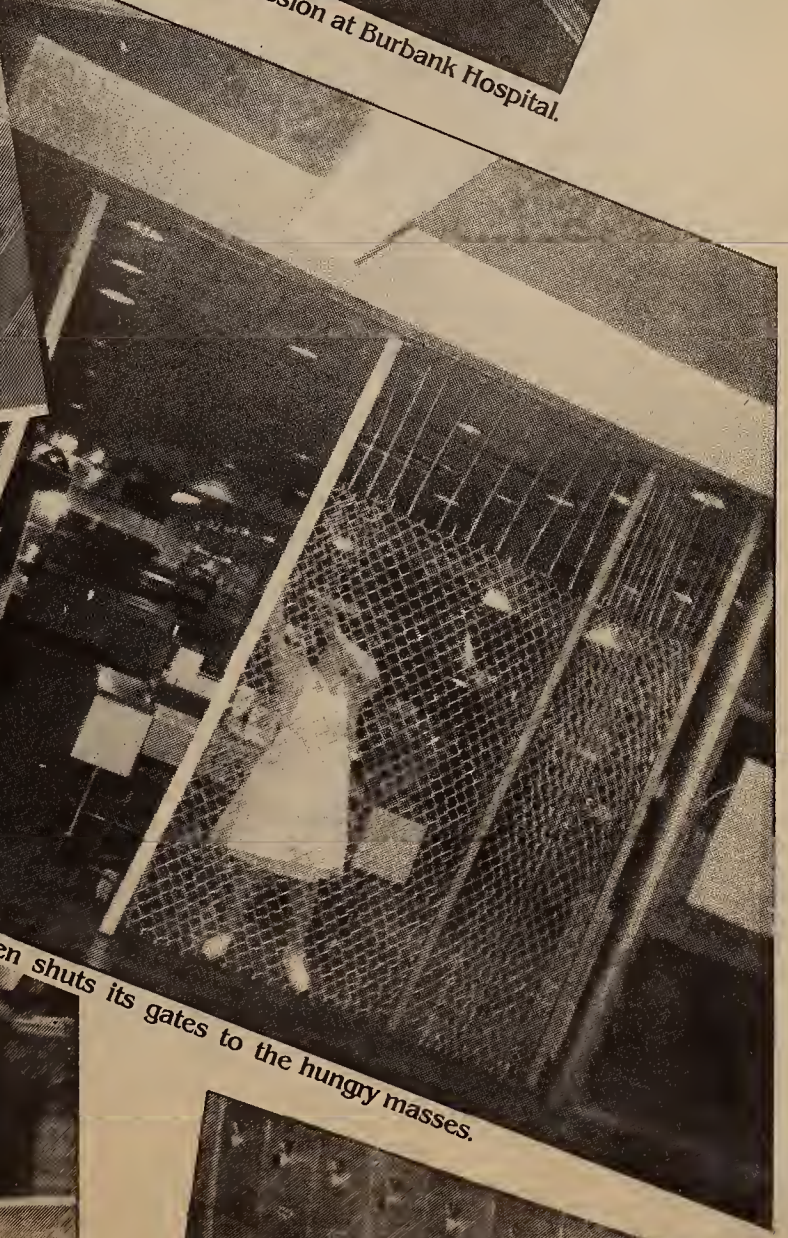

3:41 p.m.—Students gather at the Art Gallery Exhibit which featured the work of Stephen DiRado.

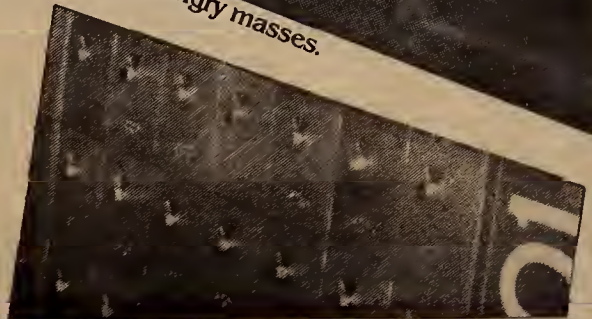

2:25 p.m.—One of FSC's nursing students tucks in Plastic Patty during a clinical session at Burbank Hospital.

10:10 a.m.—Salesman Scott Toomey sells shaded beverage coozies in G-Lobby at $30 a pop...(no pun intended).

3:00 p.m.—The Commuter Cafe kitchen shuts its gates to the hungry masses.

The "A Day In The Life" photo staff: enthusiastic, ambitious and, lucky to be caught in front of the camera only once. Left to right:(Standing) Christine Wilson, Chris Dennis, Maureen Maloof, Matt Datillo, Christopher Therrien, Wendy Rich, John Garten, Sam Beres, Alexis Arapoff, Tom Morrow and Andy Baron. (Kneeling) Sally Hitchcock, Matt Lahtinen, Al Bush and Kathy Horgan. (Sitting) Jay Capers and Todd Lajoie.

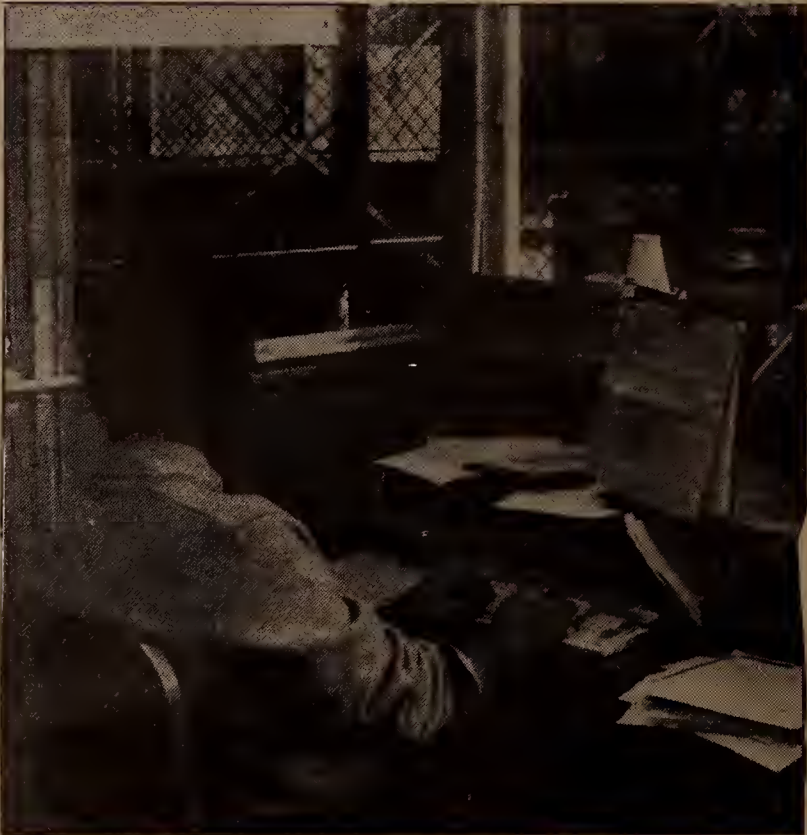

8:10 a.m.—With just minutes to go, Danielle Daly puts the finishing touches on her morning do and readies to charm the world.

9:35 p.m.—Amy McGonagle, left, and Tracy Menzies are studying hard or hardly studying?

A Day In The Life
Concept by Allen Bush

Wicked Special Thanks To:
-Andy Baron, for being a cool guy but keeping me mean.
-Jay Capers and Todd Lajoie for also being cool and spending nine hours in the dark room without the aid of a female.
-Chris Dennis, Tara Vacha and Andrea Wallace for cutting, pasting and manning production.
And of course the photography crew who, even if they didn't drop their film off, showed up for the meeting. They are: Alexis Arapoff, Tim Baker, Andy Baron, Sam Beres, Jay Capers, Matt Datillo, Chris Dennis, Fred Donovan, Scott Eaton, John Garten, Ben Hampton and Sally Hitchcock.
Also Kathy Horgan, Todd Lajoie, Matt Lahtinen, Maureen Maloof, Tom Morrow, Wendy Rich, Tina Simulevich, Christopher Therrien and Christine Wilson.

4:30 p.m.—Sports Information Director Jay Young calculates the statistics for the next playoff hockey game.

This special issue of The Strobe is the last one before Spring Break. The next edition will be published March 30. The Strobe staff wishes all students, faculty and administration a safe and fun break.
